Part V: Short passage – read the short passage and answer the questions.

I love telling stories with my children. Often times I'd start off the story with one simple sentence and we would go around adding more sentences to the story. The stories often turn out to be totally ridiculous, but that's half the fun. My kids and I would often be giggling uncontrollably as we make the characters in our stories do funny things. I have often thought about writing down the stories so that other children would enjoy them. But for now, I'm just having too good of a time making up these stories with my kids. Perhaps when my kids get older and I have more free time, I'll start putting pen to paper and get some of these silly stories published.
