II. Reading Comprehension:

The Chinese Men's National Basketball team seems to have it all: height, youth, experience and, after many disappointments, a big victory with last week's win at the Asian Basketball Confederation Championship in the Japanese city of Fukuoka. That gives China Asia's sole spot in the basketball competition at the 2000 summer Olympics.

A few Chinese players may well have their eye on another prize: a shot at the U.S. National Basketball Association. The U.S. currently suffers a lack of talented players taller than 2.1m. China happens to have a pair of world-class giants: Wang Zhizhi (22, 2.16m) and the 19-year-old center Yao Ming, who is 7 ft. 6 in. (232cm) tall.

In China, a team has absolute hold on a player's rights. Though both players seem eager to join the world's top competition, NBA, yet, their teams – the People's Liberation Army and the Shanghai Sharks – refused to release them. And they aren't the kind who would leave China without permission.

36. Which of the following statement is true:

- A. The Chinese Men's National Basketball Team won many competitions before the game in Fukuoka, Japan.
- B. China can't compete at the 2000 summer Olympics because they had many disappointments.
- C. After winning the championship at the Asia Basketball Confederation, China is the only team from Asia that will play at the 2000 Summer Olympics.
- D. Japan will hold the 2000 summer Olympics in the city of Fukuoka.

37. The players of the Chinese Men's National Basketball teams _____.

- A. are young, tall, experienced and had won a big victory recently.
- B. Suffered a lack of talented and skilled players.
- C. were disappointed that they can only play at home.
- D. seem to be afraid of height and youth.

38. A few Chinese players may well have their eye on another prize: A shot at the NBA. "A shot at the NBA" means:

- A. To watch the NBA game and win a prize.
- B. To take pictures with the NBA players.
- C. To compete with NBA teams.
- D. To join and play at the NBA.

39. Recently, the U.S.NBA is looking for _____.

- A. good players who are young and talented.
- B. Players who are from Asia.

- A. The pair of world-class giants has decided to play at the NBA.
- B. Yao Ming is called a giant because he is only 19, while Wang Zhizhi is much older.
- C. Few people are taller than Wang Zhizhi and Yao Ming in the World.
- D. Seven feet and six inches equals to 216 centimeters.

41. Choose the correct statement:

- A. The two giants would like to have absolute hold on their rights.
- B. The People's Liberation Army team is glad that Wang Zhizhi would play at the U.S. NBA.

- C. The Chinese teams refused to release the two players means the two giants were not permitted to join the NBA.
- D. The two players would still leave China without official permission.

With her titanic 6-3, 7-6 victory over the No. 1-ranked tennis player Martina Hingis, Miss Serena Williams, 17, became the first African American to win a tennis Grand Slam single title since Arthur Ashe won the Wimbledon in 1975, and the first African-American woman to win the U.S. Open since Althea Gibson in 1958.

Serena Williams and her elder sister Venus Williams have been extremely close. They are, says ex-pro Pam Shriver, “best friends, doubles partners, practice partners, I don’t think there have been players this close in the game. Certainly not at the top.”
